Dear Children of Troy:

I was delighted to learn that you have a new library. To me, your library is not just a building full of books. It is a gateway to thousands of worlds which you may chose to enter. Any world ever explored by man, or by man's mind, is there awaiting you in print. The choice is yours. It could be the magic world of make-believe or science fiction, or the fascinating worlds of history, space, science and literature, or any other of the thousands of worlds waiting there for you to discover.

To enter into any of these worlds, you need only to wander through the books, stopping to browse when a book strikes your fancy. Your Librarian will always be pleased to be your guide.

On my part, I want to wish you many happy and rewarding journies.

Sincerely yours,

The Children of Troy
