FORREST H. ANDERSON
GOVERNOR

April 29, 1971

To the Children of Troy:

The library is perhaps the most essential public facility in any community.

It is a place for students to research school projects.

It is a place to find books that will open up new worlds of adventure and knowledge for people of all ages.

It is a place where all of the great things man has done, from Biblical times to the landing on the moon, are chronicled in books, magazines and newspapers.

It is a place to find learning.

And a place to appreciate the true meanings of our society and civilization.

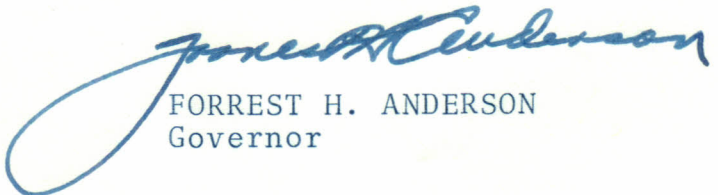

Many people will use this library.

The young will come to prepare for the future.

The old will come to remember yesterday.

And everyone will benefit from the knowledge available on the shelves of this library.

Sincerely,

FORREST H. ANDERSON
Governor
