To the Young Adult Users of the Troy Public Library:

You are indeed fortunate to have this new library, the first permanent one in Troy. A library can be a wonderful friend if you take advantage of its many resources.

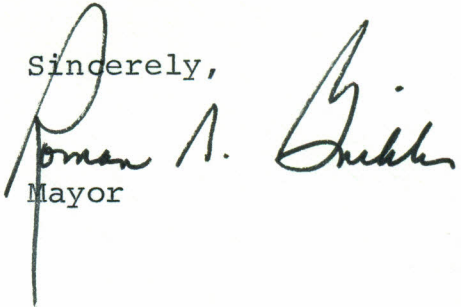

Research can be done for school work or to answer your own varied questions. The librarian will teach you the proper use of the directories and indexes which can be your best research tool.

Books are the key to intellectual enrichment. The library is a place of immense pleasure, a source of entertainment, a natural mind-expanding experience.

The people of Detroit are well aware of the usefulness of a good library. The Detroit Public Library, one of the finest in the nation, has, for over one hundred years, been an inspiration to millions of scholars, students, housewives, businessmen and young adults.

I hope you will use your new library to the fullest extent.

Sincerely,

Mayor
