Dear Boys and Girls:

I am pleased to have an opportunity to congratulate you on your new public library. Today's libraries are the supermarkets of information and the homes of man's knowledge and creativity.

Your library can be a treasure but like all treasures and wealth its true worth is in how it is used. I sincerely hope you will use your library for information, for education, and for the great pleasure, independence and enjoyment using a library's resources can give you.

I am enclosing a copy of "A Cache of Alaska Reading," a listing which you and your librarian, Mrs. Hart, might find of interest in making selections for your library.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "William A. Egan".

William A. Egan
Governor
